Joshua Podgorski

Archery and Joshua go hand in hand in each aspect of his life. "It helps relieve stress in challenging times and provides an enjoyable atmosphere that I cannot find in other sports."

He states, "I can safely say that Zach Garrett has been the greatest influence on my life as he helped me realize my true potential as an archer and that hard work can take you anywhere."

That hard work and dedication has helped to place Joshua at UCONN for a career beginning as a Pathology Major.

Maegen Toole

Any day of the week you will find Maegen practicing, teaching, or organizing archery events.

She thanks her grandfather for being her number one supporter, the greatest influence in her life and says, "He pushes me to try my hardest and never give up."

Archery has helped Maegen become a more outgoing person, giving her the ability to meet people easily and make friends from all over the world.

Maegen is to pursue a career in carpentry and begins her studies at the Manchester Community College this fall.
