

2020 SAAM Scholarship Awards

Chanze Filippi

Archery to Chanze is about self-discipline, patience and finding inner peace. Chanze enjoys all aspects of archery from shooting to assisting in kids leagues.

He has learned that goals and dreams are achievable through hard work and practice.

Chanze was accepted into the Honors Program in the Health Science Field at Sienna College.

Roxanna Sanjar

Roxanna says "Archery is a skill, an art form, and a way to channel energy that no other sport really accomplishes all the while getting to spend time with some of the most supportive and genuine people I have ever met". Archery really requires skills that I'd never known the true importance of until I was able to use them in real life.

Archery has helped shape my vision for the future by teaching me virtues like resilience and determination.

Roxanna has been accepted at Savannah College of Art & Design in the fall of 2020, where she plans to major in Sequential Art.

Jacqueline Smith

Jacqueline tried many sports before joining a friend in an archery class. She attributes archery to helping her become more confident in herself and her abilities.

Her new found confidence helped her in the classroom as well as she took more challenging courses in school.

Jacqueline plans to major in Chemistry at Northeastern University in the fall.
